THREE DAY COURSE

Kiwanis Club Meets

Young Ladies Asked
To Come Back To These Cities

Enthusiasm prevailed today among the classes and faculty in the three day session of the Morgan County Short Course, offered by the Woman's clubs of the Twin Cities in co-operation with the Home Demonstration department of the county. This course will close Friday afternoon with every club in the county having been represented.

A representative number of Albany-Decatur Kiwanians were at the Decatur High school auditorium at 11:30 o'clock today to conduct the devotional exercises at the Chapel hour. Approximately 100 girls were in attendance.

The devotional was opened with a Kiwanis favorite, sung by the visiting girls, under the direction of Miss Ballye Hamilton, county home demonstration agent.

John Patterson presided and presented Rev. J. D. Wallace who began the period of Kiwanis activity with prayer. The assembly sang a verse of "America," J. R. Daniel at the piano.

Kiwanians Clyde Hendrix and Charles Rountree gave three minute talks in expressions of appreciation for the work of Miss Hamilton, has done in the county, the work of the woman's clubs of these cities, and a cordial welcome to the girls who have come to these cities from every section of the county.

Rev. Noble R. Edwards discussed the merit of the Children's Clinic to be held here July 15, 16 and 17 when specialists from Louisville will be brought here to examine various cases from within the county sections. Rev. Edwards expressed in a few words the importance of the co-operation within county areas and asked that the visiting girls take occasion to mention the clinic on their return home.

A. A. Jones, Kiwanis chief, was presented to the audience and assured them that Albany-Decatur has found much pleasure in being allowed to entertain them.

The meeting was closed with a number of Kiwanis songs conducted by M. R. Rankin, Kiwanis song leader, with J. R. Daniel at the piano.

The Morgan County Short course, the first ever held in this county will be brought to a successful close on Friday afternoon, the young ladies leaving for their homes at 4:30 o'clock. They have been extended a cordial invitation to return to Albany-Decatur in a like meeting that is expected to be held here next year.

Swedish Crown Princess Declares
"Nothing To Criticize" In America

By MARGERY REX

International News Service Special Correspondent

NEW YORK:—

"I've a garden in Sweden, with you 'twould be Eden."

—Once Popular Song.

Being a princess places certain obligations on one, and raising a racket (and also roses) seems out of the picture until you hear the Crown Princess Louise of Sweden confess that such is her favorite sport. Not the traditional "sport of kings" but that of a modern princess who says when asked of hobbies:

"I play a little bad tennis."

Gardening is really her favorite pastime. She tells you with a glow in her hazel eyes:

"English roses grow beautifully in Swedish gardens. They don't seem to mind transplanting."

And this lovely young British Princess has weathered transplanting from her own land to Sweden's court. She possesses gratifying chic which, strangely enough, withholds itself from the camera, so that you are delightfully surprised when you behold a royal elegance that so seldom exists among the highly placed. She says of American women:

"I have always had lots of American women friends, but I find them even more charming in their own country. I think, perhaps, one is always best against one's own background."

Feminine eyes eagerly took in details of the Princess's costume—beige tailored frock, nude stockings and light kid one-strap slippers to match her gown; broad-brimmed hat of black transparent straw with a wide rose velvet ribbon twisted smartly about its crown and tucked under the brim with a matching rose or two; rose and white figured chiffon scarf about her throat.

"Look at that lovely old fashioned jewelry the Princess wears," one of the company whispered. So it was—old fashioned—wide yellow-gold wedding ring, the conventional solitaire, neither too big nor too small, and a simple size sapphire of a style that begun at least fifteen years ago.

"Likes Silk Stockings"
"I would like to do some shopping in New York," said the Princess. "Especially for silk stockings. We have good ones in our country, but there is something about American silk stockings that is simply wonderful. I shall take home quantities of them."

The Princess smoked while she talked, using a long, plain black holder, which she held at an angle of 45 degrees.

"I don't see much difference in skirt lengths here and back home," she replied to a question. "Styles are the same everywhere."

"Yes, Sweden has gone in for bobbed hair," she laughed a fringe of light brown bobbed hair showing under the picture hat.

"Fashions have grown comfortable, and I am sure they will stay that way."

"The Charleston? Oh, I saw that in Paris. It looks like fun, doesn't it? I love your theater. We saw 'Craig's Wife' the play of the woman who loved her home too much. In America you don't have to wait between the acts as long as we do on the other side."

"Didn't Try Subway"
"I didn't try the subway. Didn't want to. I know one thing I should like to do in New York—walk, and walk and walk."

"If you ask me if I have noticed a distinct American type in women, I should say yes—that it is rather on the tall side, slender, graceful."

"Your country life here is just like England's. In Sweden I have not been at many private homes—just a few castles."

The royal Princess revealed fondness for another sport and settled its pronunciation.

"I love to 'shee,' which is the way to say ski."

American cooking? The Princess likes it.

"I like your hot rolls and lobster. All your food is splendid."

"Of course I found charming—the Americans who have entertained me."

The Princess laughed at the question someone asked, as if she could not or would not say otherwise. Talking on with her cigarette holder hanging from the corner of her mouth:

"Women Advanced"
"Women of Sweden are advanced, that's true. They are interested in labor movements, in feminism and in education, in work for children and in better hospitals. But I think women should and most of them do, place their homes first in importance."

Ahead of her when she returns is

No Opinion Is Given

Likely To Be Made

A mass of testimony, assembled in proof that Robert M. Seligman was in the city of Chattanooga on the day of the fatal wounding of T. A. Bryant, Albany grocer, is responsible for the refusal of the governor of Ohio to grant the requisition request of Governor W. W. Brandon.

Nine witnesses presented signed affidavits that Seligman was in Chattanooga on the date of the fatal assault and that he was in the employ of Dan Cohen company, 730 Market street and worked there from early morning until 11 o'clock that night, February 20.

Testimony given by Russell Friedman, an employee of the Cohen company was to the effect that he knew Seligman came to work in the Cohen store about 8:30 a. m. the morning of February 20, and continued his work in that store until about 11 o'clock p. m., and was constantly in said store on that date, excepting that he was out about half an hour for lunch and half an hour for dinner.

Chester Bryant, young son of the slain man who was a witness to the tragedy, gave testimony before the Secretary to the Governor, declaring that he identified Seligman and the man who fatally wounded his father as one and the same man. Young Bryant is declared to have written his family here to the same effect, declaring he "knew he was the man who killed his father," officers say.

An Atlanta automobile dealer, from whom it is alleged that a car was stolen, later recovered the car and stated that the car had been driven but 138 miles. This testimony refuted the theory that Seligman had driven here from Atlanta in a stolen automobile, attempted the robbery and went back to Chattanooga, where the car was later recovered.

Solicitor D. C. Almon and Sheriff Ernest Poole reached Albany-Decatur late Wednesday and did not voice opinion regarding the proceeding. They had gone to Cleveland to await the outcome of Governor Brandon's request to have Seligman returned to Alabama to stand trial.

In offering Mr. Brisbane's daily editorials The Albany-Decatur Daily does not necessarily concur with his opinions, but offers them as the sentiments of the highest paid editorial writer in this country.

A DOZEN king penguins may be seen standing up straight in New York's zoological garden. First to be brought here alive from their cold home in the Antarctic, it is doubtful that they will survive the hot summer. Pay them a visit if you can.

THEY stand three feet high, looking like soldiers or clergymen, very solemn. And their breeding habits make you thoughtful. The hen penguin lays one white egg. If she laid it on the ground in her home climate it would freeze in half a minute. She puts her feet together,

Of Tragedy Just

PITTSBURGH, June 17.—Fifteen persons were killed in the wreck of the Washington express and the Cincinnati Limited near Blairsville intersection of the Pennsylvania railroad officially announced today after a careful check of all undertaking establishments in Latrobe Berry and Blairsville to which places the bodies were removed.

The crash came when the Cincinnati Limited ploughed the rear of the Washington express which had stopped when an air-hose parted. The two locomotives of the Limited and the club car immediately following them as well as two express sleepers were badly wrecked.

A mass of twisted steel was mute testimony of the terrific crash. The express sleepers were telescoped their full length. The twin locomotives on the Limited left the rails and upset while the club car crushed in on the fore end shot into the air and stood upright. All other sleepers on the two trains totaling eleven, were derailed.

Passengers who escaped with slight hurts told of the wild scenes attending the wreck. The moans of the dying and the terrific screams of the injured pinned in the debris added to the confusion. Those who were able to do so struggled from the pullmans which, while not wrecked were thrown from the rails. Most of them were in night clothes. The only lights available were the dim lanterns of railroad men.

Cool heads among the railroaders and passengers soon brought some semblance of order. Men were sent aloft to Blairsville intersection to summon aid. Those who remained at the scene tried to aid the sufferers trapped in the twisted wreckage, but the strength of the human could not combat the steel of the sleepers. These rescuers succeeded in bringing out only a few of the victims, their work being hampered by the lack of

When she can't stand it any longer the father penguin slides up and the egg is swiftly switched to his feet and he lowers a roll of fat.

THIS causes modernists to suggest that the penguin could not have been created in the Garden of Eden, with the other birds. That garden who had no roll of fat to cover them, was warm, otherwise Adam and Eve could not have gone about naked.

Modernists, needless to say, criticize thoughtlessly. A power that could create the earth, sun, moon, stars, oceans, trees, vegetables, minerals, all the animals, birds, insects, and man, in six days, by the mere utterance of a command, could easily

Emory Hames, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hames, 1811 Sixth avenue, South Albany has returned from the Shrine hospital in St. Louis, where he underwent four operations on his foot and leg, resulting in the restoration of the use of the member.

The eyes of the youngster shine with gratitude as he talks of the efforts made in his behalf by the Shriners and declared "You bet" when asked if he intended to join the Shrine when he became of age.

Young Hames was in the hospital 87 days. The boy had not been able to put his heel to the floor for years but now stands flat-footed on both feet.

The parents of the youth naturally are delighted over the success of the operation, and were grateful to the Shrine for the attention given their child.

SEVEN HEARD IN STATE'S BEHALF

Coroner Declares He Saw Powder Burns
On Jones' Coat

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 17.—The state today rested in the trial of Byron J. Shirley, charged with murder in connection with the death of John Jones.

Seven witnesses were sworn by the state. Three of these were companions of Jones the night he was slain by Shirley and Dewey Barrett, Shirley's cousin, who will be tried at the conclusion of the present case.

Court recessed for luncheon when the state made its announcement.

Three witnesses were sworn today and the testimony given was on matters of detail with which the crowd seemed little interested.

John C. Coleman, state law enforcement officer, qualified as a rifle expert and testified that occasionally a bullet would carry fire. Fire in some instances could be seen at night with high powered field glasses. This testimony evidently was intended to account for burns on the clothing of Jones, which the defense contended were powder marks, occasioned by shots at close range.

The state attempted to show that Jones was not close to Shirley and that the marks on the clothing were the results of fire carried by the bullets. The defense contended that Jones was close to and advancing on Shirley and Barrett when they fired.

The state attempted to show a different physical situation. L. H. Camp identified Jones' gun, which was offered in evidence. Coroner Rasmusson final witness for the state, identified the clothing of Jones.

Coroner Rasmusson, on cross examination by Roderick Beddoe, chief of defense counsel, testified there were two powder burned places on Jones' coat, his shirt and on his chest.

The coroner pointed out to the jury places on Jones' coat, which he said were caused by bullets entering the coat lapel and the side of the coat. There was a blister on Jones' right breast caused in his opinion by powder burns from the fire of Barrett and Shirley's pistols, the coroner said.

The blister was there when he examined the body just after the shooting, he said.

W. A. Daniels, embalmer, who prepared the body for burial, testified yesterday that he found no powder burns.

Mrs. Clarence Pearson, mystery woman in the case, who tried to kill herself yesterday when she was summoned to court, was reported at South Highlands infirmary today as "about the same" which, interpreted, means that she is extremely weak from the loss of blood. It is expected that she will recover, however, unless complications arise.

Mystery surrounding this woman grew as hours passed. The state contended it had been reported in the Solicitor's office that she was with Shirley and Barrett the night they killed Jones. The defense says there is nothing to the tale.

The people are asking questions. Among the crowd it was heard: "If she's the woman who was with Shirley and Barrett, why can't the state prove it or arrange for the continuation of the trial until she is able to testify, if she is a material witness?"

The jurors hearing the evidence in the trial must see nothing and hear nothing outside the permitted evidence in the courtroom, they were charged today by Judge McCoy. The defense said that newspapers had thrust extras of local newspapers before the eyes of the jurymen yesterday and that such action was calculated to influence the minds of the jurors.

BROKEN HEARTS of HOLLYWOOD

BY EDWARD CLARK

"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" with Louise Dresser is a Warner pictorialization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Traveling alone on the Los Angeles Limited is Betsy Ann Terrell, a girl of surpassing beauty. Hal Chutney, a handsome young man, boards the train in Iowa, Reamates, and mutually attracted, each learns that the other is on the same mission—bound for Hollywood, as prize winner of a newspaper contest, to get a movie tryout. Greatly thrilled, they arrive in Los Angeles and are met by a chauffeur from the amalgamated Studios.

The exaggerated and stereotyped emotional reactions that are useful in the registration of screen pantomime, by the bye, become a very real part in the lives of the great milling throngs of studio satellites: the reality of their struggle for existence becomes governed by the artificiality of the standardized dramatic situations they read, eat, see, breathe. And that was why this chauffeur suddenly unbent a little now, in a superior way, toward Hal and Betsy, who immediately proceeded to mistake the change in his attitude for deference to Hal's commanding importance. Thereafter, Betsy edged closer to Hal, while he mellowed like a tomato on a window sill in the sun.

"Well," the chauffeur explained as though he were a King addressing a beggar, "it's too late for you to go to the studio today, so I was instructed to help you find a boarding place convenient to the studio."

"We made up to live at the same boarding house," said Hal innocently, "so, will you take us to one where both actors and actresses live?"

The chauffeur's chuckle and smirk at this was genuine, and did lamp her, you might try getting a job in a mob at the United Artists. Only, out there none of the extras as much as turn their heads to look when she passes, unless they're facing her. Now you take me, for instance—the chauffeur was warming into positive loquaciousness because of the way these two youngsters hung on his words; to them he had suddenly appeared in the light of all-knowing importance. Therefore he maintained his best John Barrymore expression as he enlarged, "Why should I want to give Mary a tumble? Why, I knew her way back in the old days at the L. M. P. studios in New York"—he had never been out of the States, this chauffeur, but this is what he had heard many old actresses say—when she only got twenty-five dollars a week and had to sweep the floor besides. Yes, sir, she was quite pretty to those days, will you cut?" When I seen her playing with King Baggot, I used to say to myself, 'There's a girl who's prettier on the screen than off it and I advised the boss to tie her up.'"

They were bowling along broad residential boulevards now. "There's where Monte Blue lives." With each new house the chauffeur pointed out, and connected with a familiar and famous name, Hal and Betsy sat a little closer, breathed a little faster. The lovely actress known as Beverly Hills, explained the chauffeur, was the home of most of the elite of filmdom.

Hal and Betsy, what with staring and gazing and marveling and dreaming hardly noticed the gradual transition from the flashy sweep of blears and palatial residences to more modest outskirts. But the chauffeur's crisp explanation brought them out of the trance into which their kaleidoscopic experiences had plunged them.

"Along here," he declared, slowing down before a line of neat but unpretentious homes, "are some pretty good boarding houses for the film people. And it's kinda neat the studio, where you'll be—for the next two months, at least, unless you're more terrible than most of the hicks!"

They selected a house, which they found to be conducted by a kindly Irish woman; yes, she had two single rooms. Hal depended upon Betsy's inspection and judgment; and on her word they engaged the rooms—thus bringing their quarters hunting search to an end at its beginning. Before the chauffeur drove away he warned them:

"Your orders is to report at the studio at nine sharp tomorrow morning."

"We'll be there!" promised Hal loftily.

"Have they picked out good parts for us to play?" inquired Betsy earnestly.

"Knockouts!" grinned the chauffeur, winking at the landlady.

"Tell the manager that we will be on hand," said Hal importantly, "and that we had a nice trip and are all ready for hard work. He'll be glad to know."

"Oh, no doubt about it," said the chauffeur. "He's only had about two hundred others like you drifting in and out the past six months since they started this fool publicity stunt of Personality and Popularity contests." With that the chauffeur betook himself off in a cloud of sarcastic dust, leaving two puzzled youngsters staring at each other and then into the genial landlady's tired eyes.

"Pay no attention to his likes; he's one of those hardboiled studio fellows who thinks that being chauffeur to Chester Conklin puts 'em on a social footing with the Prince of Wales' secretary."

The woman's tired eyes burned with an unwonted fierceness as she looked at Betsy closely, when they were walking slowly into the house.

"It's funny, girls, but you remind me of someone—I can't place. Someone very familiar—yet for the life of me, I can't remember who 'tis. Like some face I used to see a lot—back a while. Any of your kin in pictures?"

"No, I have no relatives. Mother died when I was a baby; father several years ago. I've been boarding since then, and working as a stenographer until I won this trip."

In the short hour remaining before supper, Betsy and Hal found plenty to occupy them in getting settled in their respective rooms. Then came that recurrent ordeal of the denizens of boarding houses: running, as newcomers, the gauntlet of introductions and the stares of the other boarders at the first meal hour.

Mrs. Prue, the landlady, presented them to as motley an array of personages as they had ever seen, each one of whom they were to come to know better as the days went by. Perhaps a dozen men and women of nondescript ages but of distinctive types clustered to places around the two tables in the broad, low-ceilinged dining room.

not need the inspiration of his favorite actor. He leered at Hal: "You're a fast worker, kid—put in your time on the train to good advantage, didn't you?"

Which did not mean a thing to either Betsy or Hal, who began to look out the window now, realizing with a thrilling start that they were swimming along in the stream of traffic through the heart of Los Angeles. Things seemed all right again. The crusty arrival had been broken through and courage was beginning to seep back into their minds, although there was no stopping the fast beating of their hearts or the nervous moisture to the palms of their hands. It was all so like a fairy tale! Los Angeles! Wide streets and attractive shops. Bright crowds and white sunlight. Trilley's like the Russian cannon at Balaklava—to the right, left, in front and behind! Over all the leisurely spirit of the enervating semi-tropics that even Booster Clubs cannot harangue out of the limbs and veins of white men.

"Keep your eyes on the street sidewalks and see if we can recognize anyone of the screen actors in the crowds," Betsy whispered to Hal.

But the chauffeur overheard, and retorted slightly:

"Actors whose mugs are well-known enough for you to recognize ain't got no time to be taking the air downtown here. Besides, who ever heard of an actor walkin' when he could stand still and be rubbed at just as well?"

"Do—do you think—we might see Mary Pickford along here?" asked Betsy timidly.

"Say, didn't ever see or hear of the Pope window-shopping on Main street in Rome?"

"But—but—can't one ever see Mary Pickford here, in real life?"

"Well, if you're dead anxious to against the defendant. They referred particularly to the item concerning the alleged attempted suicide of Mrs. Clarence Pearson, "Mystery woman," whom the state said was believed to have been in the car with Shirley and Barrett the night they shot Jones.

The jury, the defense said, saw the article whether its members willed or no. He wanted the jurors questioned as to just what they saw.

to roundly score the state law enforcement department for its activity in the case by declaring that Mrs. Pearson's act was the result of the sleuthing of a spindle-legged state law enforcement officer who had wrought such fears in the woman's mind that she had attempted to slay herself.

He said there was not a "scintilla of truth in reports that Mrs. Pearson was with Shirley on the night of the homicide. Horace Wilkinson, of the state, opposed interrogation of the jurors as to just what they learned from newspaper headlines and Judge McCoy settled on the point that they must be guided solely by the privileged evidence submitted in court.

LAS (VAGAS June 17.—Two separate investigations were started today to fix cause and responsibility for the fire at dawn yesterday in a Union Pacific tourist sleeper near Crystal Siding, Nev., in which five passengers burned to death and seven were injured, one seriously. Only one of the bodies recovered had been identified this morning, the railroad listing four persons as missing.

Mrs. J. B. King, Drummond, Mont., a bride of a few days, perished when she returned to the blazing car in an effort to save her husband who entered it to recover baggage. King escaped by jumping from a window and was not aware that his wife had reentered the car. He was badly burned.

The fire broke out in a pullman car and before the train could be moved the flames trapped the sleepers.

The cause of the fire is unknown although investigators regarded the electric wiring in the car as a possible source. Authorities here and the Union Pacific officials are making separate investigations.

The train was stopped when the blaze was discovered but the seriousness was not apparent until an attempt was made to bring the coach to Crystal Siding.

I'll say P.A. makes a bang-up cigarette

IF YOU have never made a cigarette with Prince Albert, I'd like to register right here that you've been missing something mighty good. You can quote me on this: a cigarette made with good old P. A. has 'em all stopped in the home-rolled line. It's the tobacco!

Prince Albert needs no paper-weight or pot-lid to keep it from blowing away when you roll it. You know what I mean . . . stays put in the papers. But that isn't the big point. It's the wonderful taste of a P. A.-rolled cigarette that bangs your smoke-spot for high score.

Cool as a parachute-jumper. Sweet as a stolen kiss. Fragrant as a pine-grove on a damp morning. I'd like to bet that you'll be rolling one right after another when you try P. A. Which will be soon, if I have made myself clear! Try rolling 'em with P. A. on my say-so.

If you're a pipe-smoker, Prince Albert will give you more pleasure that way too. I smoke it both ways—a few home-rolled cigarettes and then a pipe-load. A couple more cigarettes and then a pipe-load. And so on. Either way, P. A. is wonderful tobacco. It sure is, Men.

Cheer up, July's going to break all records for warmth.

A curb market here would curb trade losses in the same place.

So far, The Daily has seen no charge that the spirits moved the people of the Quaker state to name a wet candidate for the senate.

The Daily hopes that Engineer McCalla's "investigation" of the status of Echols Hill is nearing a close and that the state highway department soon will take steps to improve this link of roadway, which is, at least a detriment, is not an actual menace to travel over the Bee Line highway.

A co-operative sale of poultry was made by farmers in Clarke county by the county farm bureau. Three thousand and birds brought $4,150. The farmers received 24 cents a pound for their hens, as compared with 16 cents a pound offered locally, light broilers brought 35 cents and heavy broilers 40 cents per pound. Farmers gradually are realizing that the farm bureau offers them an agency for making money.

The rural sanitation work, under the direction of the Morgan county health department, has begun. All power to it. Members of the board of revenue were unable to provide the $5,000 fund asked for this work by the department this year, but prospects are good that the money will be available next year.

Because of the lack of funds, whatever work done this summer necessarily must be in a very limited degree, but a start has been made. When it is considered that the ratio of infant deaths is about three times as numerous in the rural sections as in the cities, principally because of better sanitation in the cities, the importance of rural sanitation is obvious.

TWIN CITIES HONORED BY PRESENCE OF YOUNG LADIES HERE FOR THE SHORT COURSE

Albany and Decatur are honored by the large attendance here at the first Morgan county short course, sponsored by the ladies of the Federated clubs.

The Twin Cities extend to these young women of the county their sincerest welcome for these cities are proud that they may be of service to the people of Morgan county. The citizens of this community trust that the short course may be most pleasant and profitable to those who are here and that other visits by the young people may be of frequent occurrence.

JOIN IN ATHLETICS

Join in athletics, the heat won't hurt you, you can't get any warmer by exercising than if you sit on the front porch, or even drive around all afternoon. Athletics produce cleanliness, vitality and a sound sleep at night from which you will awaken refreshed for the duties of the day. A warm and then a cold shower after vigorous exercise will help you toward more red blood corpuscles than all the patent medicine and body builders known to the science of mankind.

Swimming, golf, baseball, running, any of those sports for an hour in the afternoon at the close of business hours will improve you mentally and physically. You have the fortune of removing your mind from the height of humidity, forgetting that there is such a thing as a weather bureau to predict that tomorrow will be warmer than today. There's nothing wrong with keeping the body in the so-called "pink of condition," the body is the temple of the soul and should reflect the clean thoughts of the mind. Join in athletics if you would be an all-round vigorous citizen.

ARE THE REPUBLICANS IN EARNEST ABOUT BREAKING THE "SOLID SOUTH"?

In view of the many economic reasons why a two-party political system would be good for the South, those who contend that the republican party really will make an effort to break up the "Solid South" are given perhaps more serious attention than they warrant, for the question always remains "Are the Republicans in earnest?"

About the time that the republican party convinces a fairly large public group that it is in earnest, some prominent member of that organization does something to convince the same cross section of the public, and the remainder, that the guess is wrong.

In the last few days President Coolidge has cemented anew the allegiance of the Southern states to the democratic standard. On Tuesday President Coolidge established a precedent when he and Mrs. Coolidge sat down at the luncheon table in the white house with President Borno, colored head of the West Indian negro republic of Haiti and his wife.

Theodore Roosevelt once invited Booker T. Washington, noted negro leader, to the white house for luncheon, but the two sat at separate tables. There was quite a stir all over the country as a result, but it is likely to become but a faint memory in face of the certain storm to follow President Coolidge's action. The president of Haiti sat on the right side of President Coolidge. On the former's right was Mrs. Coolidge and at the table were other prominent men and women, high in the republican councils and in the government.

No, the day has not arrived when the national republican ticket can depend on support in the South. The republicans must offer social protection, as well as economic progress, before the South will grasp the hand of the G. O. P. political candidates.

WITH RAYON COMPETING WITH COTTON, NEW USES FOR STAPLE ARE SOUGHT

With cotton farmers facing another big crop this year, and the use of rayon threatening the staple as a real competitor, interest of the Southern states turns with earnest thought to the forthcoming conference to be held in Birmingham on July 1, when new uses for cotton will be sought.

Farmers of the South, of course, can, whenever they see fit, reduce their cotton acreage and turn their time to production of other crops, yet, despite all efforts at diversification cotton remains as the greatest money crop in all the South. Any circumstance which threatens to disrupt the market for the staple threatens serious disruption of the economic fabric of Southern agriculture and the Birmingham conference looms as one of paramount importance.

The decision to call the Birmingham conference, which is to continue only one day, was reached after deliberate study. Leaders of agriculture in this state are convinced that there are many ways cotton could be used that are not now utilized. The 1925 crop proved too large for normal demand. One or two more crops of such magnitude, with no increase in the demand, and with rayon gradually enlarging its own field, would court disaster.

In regard to the conference Prof. Duncan and President O'Neal, have issued the following explanation:

The present situation of cotton is such as to warrant the serious consideration of every person in the South because the social and business structure of the South is built around cotton. It is really a national problem in that it is the South's great cash crop and the largest export crop of the United States. Therefore, cotton does more than any other product to keep our international balance on the right side.

Under the stimulus of higher prices our cotton acreage in Alabama and in all other Southern States has shown a remarkable increase and with better methods of fertilization and cultivation and boll weevil control, we are threatened with over-production for some time unless new outlets are provided. Believing that there are many additional ways in which cotton can be used to advantage, we are asking all those who are interested in the subject to meet us in Birmingham, Thursday, July 1, for the purpose of going into the subject from every angle and deciding what can be done.

It is impossible to send personal invitations to all who should attend and for this reason the announcement is being made through the press. It is hoped that bankers, retail merchants, wholesale merchants, concrete manufacturers, fertilizer manufacturers and dealers, feed manufacturers, industrial leaders, representatives of the press, spinners, and other lines of business will be represented. Each person should come prepared to make a contribution to the conference.

That rayon is destined to be a serious menace to the supremacy of cotton is the opinion of many experts, including J. D. Pope, of Auburn, who says: "King Cotton has had a long and powerful reign and his throne at this time shows no signs of tottering. Yet we wonder if his head, like all others crowned, doesn't rest uneasy when he thinks of the strides of modern science in developing chemical fibers."

Mr. Pope, in an interesting article, published in the current issue of the Alabama Farm Bureau, adds: "Cotton has a possible competitor in artificial silk or rayon. The matter may become of considerable importance to the cotton grower."

Mr. Pope, who speaks after careful study of the rayon situation, asserts that the 185,000,000 pounds of rayon produced in 1925 cannot be said to have replaced that many pounds of cotton, but he shows that the production of the artificial product, which is made by a synthetic chemical process from wood pulp or from cotton linters, has increased from 26,000,000 pounds in 1914 to 141,000,000 in 1924 and 185,000,000 pounds in 1925, truly a phenomenal record.

At present rayon, which possesses a peculiar lustre not given to cotton, is used, for the greater part, for ornamentation, or in a supplementary capacity to cotton itself. The use in other ways, however, is increasing rapidly.

With chemistry making the rapid strides it is today, Mr. Pope sees rayon as an increasingly important competitor of cotton as the quality of rayon is improved and its production cheapened. He sees a ray of hope, however, in the statistics which show that while rayon consumption has gained on silk, it has not prevented the increased trend of silk production. He believes the same may be true of cotton, provided new uses are discovered for the staple. This brings us back to the importance of the Birmingham conference on July 1, when a round table discussion will be held of the possibility of finding these new uses.

Mr. Pope believes that new methods of utilization of the staple can and will be found. He concludes his illuminating article as follows:

Even if rayon or some other chemical fiber should displace a large volume of cotton, the uses to which cotton can be put can be enlarged greatly. There are many substitutes for wood nowadays, yet wood consumption is increasing because new uses for wood are being found all the time. Less cotton clothing per capita is used today than 45 years ago, but more cotton is consumed per capita now than then. Rayon itself has increased the use of cotton linters.

It seems that it would be worth while for the cotton co-operatives to study carefully the question of new uses for cotton, and to analyze the trends in the textile industry.

The present developments in the cotton area, to the Daily at least, are convincing signs that every person interested in cotton growing should make an effort to be present at the Birmingham gathering. The Daily sincerely hopes that a large representation will be present from Morgan county.

GERMANY is torn asunder by the fight to take six hundred million dollars' worth of property from the former kaiser and other royalties.

War may break out any minute between Russia and Rumania because of a quarrel over Bessarabia. Rumania would not last long, and if she is relying on the League of Nations she is leaning on a broken reed. Europe is not peaceful.

The Theosophists, says 'Christ is coming soon and will hasten His return somewhat in order to inhabit the body of Krishnamurti.' Krishnamurti is a young Indian of whom Mrs. Besant has a high opinion. If the founder of Christianity did return it would be hard to imagine him entering the delicate, strange body of a sensitive young Hindu.

MORE HAPPY times in Wall Street yesterday, somebody bought 122,000 shares of steel common and put the price to 137 1/4. There is a big million hidden away there; at least four hundred million dollars worth of melon. But Judge Gary is by nature not a melon cutter, but a conservative. That is why "big steel" has got the $400,000,000 cash.

EUROPE wasn't so cheerful. French francs dropped to a new low price for all time, and unless the French can find a way to stabilize their nations, the franc will drop still lower. Bad judgement will be responsible for the franc's dilemma. No nation on earth is more thoroughly solvent.

THE Reverend Dr. Young, shocked by the Pennsylvania election fund of $2,000,000 says public sentiment alone will end buying public offices.

The difficulty is that public sentiment doesn't know what's going on until it is done, and when public opinion does get any information it soon forgets it.

THE Reverend Dr. Slaten expects the human race to change greatly in sixty years. "Our grand-children will make nature their teacher, rather than theology or philosophy." He also says our grandchildren will believe in internationalism, which will replace the patriotism of today.

THINGS don't happen so rapidly. Patriotism, which means holding together and keep that way what your ancestors have accomplished, will be necessary for many generations. As for making nature your teacher, without the help of theology or philosophy, nature can teach little unless the light of philosophy helps you understand and the light of inspiration makes it worth while. Primitive men had nature for teacher, and she only taught them to murder each other and invent superstitions to justify it.

Bee Line Is Open On Northern Route

Traveling salesmen declared today that the Bee Line highway north of Athens is now completed, with the exception of one half mile where construction forces are now employed. The highway department has cleared the road for an approximate distance of five miles within the past six months. Travelers declared that the distance between the north bank of the Tennessee river and Pulaski is now negotiated in an hour and a half.

HUNTSVILLE ROAD TO BE BUILT SOON

Contract On Limestone Project May Be Let Next Month

Contract for the Limestone county portion of the Athens-Huntsville highway may be ready for award in July, according to information made public at the state highway department in Montgomery. The contract for the Madison County link may be delayed because of the necessity of re-locating part of the road, the statement, which follows, revealed:

"Mr. Rogers has requested that I write you in regard to the status of the plans for the road between Huntsville and Athens.

"In a telephone conversation with the division office at Birmingham, I find that the plans of the Limestone county section are 95 per cent complete in that office. The plans for the Madison county section are not this far advanced, due to the necessity of having to make a re-location approximately five miles in length.

"Under these conditions, Limestone section can be advertised sometime during the latter part of July, and it is possible that the Madison county section can also be advertised about this time."

Voice of People

The following letter was sent the Daily by Honorable A. G. Patterson, with the request that it might be published to better acquaint the people with his position upon road issues in the gubernatorial campaign:

Hon. F. D. McArthur, States Campaign Manager, For, Hon. Chas S McDowell, Candidate for Governor, Molton Hotel, Birmingham.

Dear Sir:—

In my rounds over the State I have been shown by numerous parties, letters written by you in behalf of Mr McDowell, which letters misrepresent my position upon the $25,000,000 bond issue, twice voted by the people of Alabama.

I quote from one of these letters, dated May 3rd addressed to Hon E M Confer of Calera, Ala, as follows:

"He (Mr McDowell) advocated the present bond issue of $25,000,000 which really meant $50,000,00 because of the additional amount received from the federal government while the opposing candidates at this time for governor were opposed to such an issue. Had their lead been followed, we would have had no state roads today of any value."

I cannot believe that you would intentionally misrepresent my position nor do me an injustice in this matter. However, the misstatement of facts contained in your letter is calculated unless promptly corrected to injure my candidacy.

My record in favor of good roads, both in my native county and as a member of the State Highway Commission is too well known to the people of Alabama to be subjected to a misrepresentation.

As you know, I was a member of the state highway commission for four years and actively supported the $25,000,000 bond issue in both campaigns before the voters of Alabama.

I have in the past and am now supporting every proper and practical movement to carry forward and complete a system of state highways at the earliest possible moment.

I am not in favor of the $75,000,000 bond issue because I believe same to be unnecessary. I further believe that an adequate road building program can and will be financed without increasing the existing heavy bonded indebtedness of the state. I believe it the state's bonded debt was increased by $75,000,000 making the total bonded debt of the state approximately $120,000,000 that this heavy bonded debt would constitute a tremendous drain upon the state's revenues for a generation and would very likely result in an increase of property taxes or a reduction of the state's appropriations for schools charitable and other state institutions.

I have not at any time during this campaign advocated an increase of Alabama's bonded debt for roads. I have heretofore stated my position as follows. "If an adequate road building program cannot be financed without an additional bond issue then, in that event, I shall favor a bond issue of only such amount as can be wisely spent in the next four years. I favor submitting the road program to the people every four years." I am proposing a plan for highway construction based upon the report of the chairman of the state board of accountancy which is calculated to yield the sum of $32,690,229 for road construction during the next four years. Adding to this amount the $9,000,000 now available we will have $41,690,229 for road building during the next four and one half years.

There is as you know or should know, an unexpended balance from the $25,000,000 bond issue of $7,000,000. There is due the state from the Federal Government the sum of $2,000,000 making a total of $9,000,000 now available for road construction.

My computation of funds for road construction does not include the auto tag tax which figured upon the same percentage of increase as in the previous four years, should yield the sum of $15,000,000 during the next four years. This fund should be used for maintenance of our system of highways and to retire the present $25,000,000 bonded debt. This fund will not, in my judgment, be adequate to maintain the state's system of roads if built more rapidly than the expenditures I am advocating would provide for.

I respectfully request that you write to each party to whom you have addressed letters containing the above misstatements of facts promptly correcting the same. I further request that you furnish me a list of the names of the parties to whom you have addressed such letters.

Awaiting your prompt reply, I am, Yours very truly,

A. G. PATTERSON

Barons Break Losing Streak; Pirates Gain On Cincinnati

The Birmingham Barons broke their long losing streak Wednesday at the expense of Little Rock. The score was 8-6. Crowder started on the mound for Birmingham but was replaced by Thomas in the seventh after the Peds had collected four runs off his delivery. Twenty-five hits were gathered during the game, Birmingham getting fourteen and Little Rock eleven. Griffith and Roser hit home runs.

Mobile defeated Nashville for the third straight game, causing the Vol string of set-backs to run to eight straight. The numerals were 11-3. Lindy Lindstrom was pounded hard in the second and Ellis relieved him. Murray had an easy time with the advantage of a big lead. Camp, of Nashville, hit a home-run with no one on base.

Rogers let the slugging Memphis Chicks down with five hits while his teammates collected thirteen off Bonnelly and Brillhart and Atlanta copied the opener 6-0. This unexpected set-back cut the Chicks lead over Birmingham to only half a game. Haas, of Atlanta, made the longest hit of the game with a three bagger.

Rain halted the New Orleans-Chattanooga tilt in the second inning with no runs yet across the platter.

The Washington Senators dropped a pitcher's duel to the Chicago White Sox 3-2. A squeeze play by Falk and Kamm in the sixth gave Chicago her winning run. Both Johnson and Lyons were hit hard, twelve hits being made off Walter's delivery and nine off Lyons. Goose Goslin led in swats for the day with four hits out of five times up. No other American League games were scheduled.

Chicago won the finale of the Cub-Phillie series 4-1. Blake held the Phillies to four hits while his teammates grabbed 17 off the Philadelphia pitchers. Two of Philadelphia's hits came in the eighth giving them their lone run. Stephenson, former Alabama star, grabbed three hits out of five times at the platter.

Pittsburg closed the series with Boston by defeating them 6-3. Kiki Cuyler, formerly of Nashville, was responsible for four of his team's runs, having now hit safely in 22 consecutive games. Morgridge was invincible, allowing Boston only 7 hits while 12 were made off Genewich's delivery.

The St. Louis-Brooklyn game was postponed because of cold weather. Only three games were scheduled to be played.

Even the mighty fall. Grover Cleveland Alexander, a pitching star when you and I wore ruffles on our collars with a nice Byronic flare tie, has been suspended by Joe McCartney, manager of the Chicago Cubs. Grover is charged with infringement of training rules. Alexander has been a great star since his entrance into the Majors, but so was Babe Ruth until he obtained the brilliant idea that he was a great deal more important than the American league. Things just don't work out to the satisfaction of stars at times.

Independent Teams In Many Cities Now

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 17—Many Alabama towns are joining the ranks of the independent baseball teams, giving indications for one of the most eventful summers in the history of the pastime within the state.

Sylacauga, Aliceville, Talladega, Notasulga, Anniston and a number of other towns have been on the field for some time now having played a number of games.

Tuskegee has a team on the way, while Selma reports that efforts are being made there to bring out a team. So numerous are the towns promoting independent clubs this year that sport followers predict that the largest field ever put forth within the state will be forthcoming this year.

In most of these cases the teams are using college players, some of them members of colleges in Alabama, while some come from neighboring states. On account of association rules, most of these teams are playing only three games a week, but the daily sport pages of Alabama newspapers are becoming filled with accounts of games between independent baseball teams in Alabama.

Howard Ehmke, star Boston Red Sox pitcher was the central figure in a trade between the Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox.
